

TEAM BUILDING / COMMUNICATION EXERCISES

Different Stages

Q What do Nokia, The Savoy Group, Claridge's, Volkswagen Audi, and Peugeot have in common?

A They have all been recent clients of the following communications programme.

There are many similarities between 'putting on a show' in the world of entertainment, and business life. The essentials such as leadership, clear lines of communication and directives, inter-departmental co-operation (or not!), advertising, deadlines and so on are common to both fields. 'Different Stages' offers fun, robust and rounded experiences for teams who are keen to take a risk and meet the challenges set for them.

Facilitated by a professional West End Musician, 'Different Stages' brings stage presence, drama, dance and music to the world of management development and make it an unique experience - an environment where your key staff can try out new and invigorating ways of doing things and thus discover their hidden potential.

The atmosphere is all about fun. The only people allowed to look silly are our staff, there is no pressure to become a star, merely to learn a few tricks from the professionals and enjoy it!

This is a very refreshing change from run of the mill sporty and ultra competitive team challenges. Whilst there is some competition, fundamentally 'the show must go on' so there is no option but to work as a team! This development exercise can be run world wide allowing multi-national companies to have a controlled training programme with consistency of content and delivery. 'Different Stages' is also perfectly adaptable to be either stand alone, or to fit within your available time as part of a conference or existing training schedule.
